

SOME FACTS SO MUCH IS SAID READ THIS...

And done in advertising to mislead the public that it is hard to pick out the grain from the chaff. Everybody says he's got the biggest stock—that his goods are better made and that he sells at the lowest prices. Here are a few facts that our brother clothiers in Honolulu can't dispute:

This is the only store in Honolulu that sells ready-to-wear clothing exclusively. We MUST have variety and sizes to fit you, because we have no (big profit) made-to-order department to fall back on.

We have two stores—each filled to overflowing with bright, new merchandise—every inch of space crowded. No other stores in Honolulu use more than one store for sale purposes.

We buy every stitch of our own goods for spot cash. We certainly ought to own our goods at bottom figures, and we only grow bigger by selling that way.

Nothing is too good for our trade. Suits this season as fine as cloth can be woven—up to $25.00.

This motto rules the business. If you buy it here and it goes wrong, it is made right and your money back if you want it.

Joseph Aea To Be
West Point
Cadet.

CAPT. POND'S SON
FOR NAVY PLUM

Daniel Yowell Alternate Candidate for Military—Whiting for Judge.

(Special Correspondence.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Delegate Wilcox has appointed as his cadet to West Point, Joseph Kaiponohea Aea, with Daniel Yowell as alternate. The appointments were made after recommendations had been made by the members of the Independent party and the young men chosen had been as well recommended by many private parties. The first named, it is understood, will be given special training before he comes on to pass the examinations, which are very rigid. This holds not only in the classical course but also in the physical examination. The cadet proper is understood here to be an especial favorite of the Queen, a protégé in fact, and his appointment is made that the course may be taken by one who is a full Hawaiian. Yowell is said to be only part Hawaiian and is named that there may be no danger that the place for the Islands is not filled in the event of the rejection of Aea.

The appointment to the Naval Academy will go to the son of Captain Pond, U. S. N., who was the first in the field to urge the selection by Wilcox, and secured the promise. This place would have been an ideal one for some of the bright young Hawaiians; perhaps one which would have opened a career which would have appealed more directly to one of the race than a place in the army.

The report that the Judge of the First District was to resign was received here with some interest. Delegate Wilcox decided at once that he would recommend the appointment to the vacancy of former Judge Whiting, who was one of the strongest candidates for the place which went to the incumbent, but was beaten on account of a personal fight. The fight at this time will be made a hard one and it is expected that Whiting will win.

The publication here yesterday of the reports that the Porto Ricans who recently arrived in Honolulu had engaged in a riot and that they had been ticketed to carry them to their destination and to identify them, did not cause any criticism unduly at the Bureau of Immigration, as the methods under which the Porto Ricans were handled by the planters' agents are well known. When the Porto Ricans arrived in New Orleans and were removed to Texas, many reports of ill-usage were printed in the east and these had the effect of making an investigation necessary and an agent was sent out for that purpose. His report was such as to quell any feeling of distrust of the agents of the planters and there was no further thought given the matter.

Chased by a Sea Serpent.

A terrible story is told by the captain and crew of the steam trawler Craig-Gowan, of Aberdeen, which arrived in Fraserburgh lately, storm-bound. Having heard that the crew of the Craig-Gowan had seen some strange animal when a mile or so north of Rattray Head, a correspondent of the Aberdeen Journal waited upon them and had an interview with the skipper, Captain J. Ballard.

Captain Ballard said: We left Aberdeen at 12 noon, and all went well, though the weather looked threatening, until off Rattray Head, when the wind freshened almost into a gale, and the sea rose very rapidly. We were steaming 10 1/2 knots when the gale burst. At this time we noticed a smack some distance off seaward. She had the smallest bit of sail set, and was heading southward. This might have been about 2 p. m. or thereabout. I went below for something, and had been down but a few minutes when J. Watt, chief engineer, called me up, saying that a whale or some extraordinary large animal had been following in our wake.

On reaching the deck, I found several of the crew looking over the weather rail. On joining them I saw, greatly to my surprise, a very large animal of a dark color, which seemed racing with us, but which was about fifty feet to windward. I had often seen whales, but at once saw this monster, the like of which I had never seen in my life.

As it rose several portions of the body were visible at one time. It seemed to make its way through the water, showing repeated portions of a dark brown body. The men seemed to be very much struck by its strange appearance, and I suggested to try some plan to get rid of it, but no one seemed to grasp any plan likely to affect so huge an animal. We had left our deck hose at Aberdeen, but I asked Mr. Watt and his assistant, Dalgleish, to bring up a furnace rake. The animals was now uncomfortably near. We could even see that the skin was covered by some substance like a rough coating of hair. Securing the furnace rake to a stout line, I threw it at the animal, but it fell short. I again tried; this time the rake landed across the animal's back, and we suddenly drew the line.

Judge of our surprise and alarm when the monster raised its body (the fore part) clean out of the water, and made direct for the Craig-Gowan. Everybody rushed aft, some down the companionway, and some down the engine-room stairs. I stood almost petrified with the sudden development of affairs. I plainly saw the monster rise up until its head was over our gaff peak, when it lowered itself with a motion as sudden as lightning, carrying away the peak, halcyons, and sending the gaff, sail and all, down on deck. The utmost consternation amongst the crew now ensued, and it was a time before we got matters squared up. The animal had then entirely disappeared, and we did not see it again. We held on for Fraserburgh, where we arrived at 6 p. m., and, being afraid that our story would be discredited, we have said nothing of it; at least, as little as possible, until this account, which is a true one, was given as stated.

The crew say they never even heard of such a monster, and that such a monster existed was until now quite unknown to any of them.

Mr. Ballard lives in Torry, where also Mr. J. Watt, engineer, resides. Dallas, Collie, Fraser and Mackay are the other members of the crew, and reside in Aberdeen. The Craig-Gowan has left for sea again, the weather moderating. Captain Ballard describes this experience as being one of the strangest in his lifetime, and says he would not again like to undergo another quarter of an hour's terror like that gone through for any money. The animal's head, he added, was long and flat, and I distinctly saw its eyes, and also saw its mouth open. Its body was long, and of a round shape on back, and flat below. Several large, fin-like flippers played about rapidly, the sound of their flapping against the body being quite audible as it rose up out of the sea. It must have been of a great length; how long I cannot hazard an opinion.

UNIQUE PRESENT.

President McKinley is to be presented by the California electors with a souvenir ballot box suitably inscribed with the figures of that state's Republican majority.

It is said that Ruth Bryan, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, started to school morning, long ago, and after a desperate run for a street car, finally succeeded in catching it. As she took her seat she gasped: "Well, I'm glad one of the family can run for something and get it."

BABY FOODS

It is clear that doctors and mothers think more of special foods than they used to.

The reasons are: (1) Both mothers and babies live less naturally than they used to.

(2) mother's milk is not so plenty, and not so good, as it used to be; (3) Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is mother food as well as baby food —enables the mother to feed her baby naturally.

We'll send you a little to try if you like.
